What Consumers Need to Know

Consumers need help making the connection between Consumer’s Marketplace Application and Filing Their Taxes.

Many are unaware that their enrollment application impacts their taxes. Mistakes on the application may lead to inaccuracies on Form 1095-A and may mean consumers have to refile their taxes in the future. We can mitigate this risk by ensuring certain data fields are correct.
How Assisters Can Help During OE

Assisters should talk to consumers about:

- Updating prior year mailing addresses
- Double checking demographic information is correct
- Confirming household structure and that the tax filer will claim dependents
Update Prior Year Mailing Address

- Assisters should ask consumers if their mailing addresses have changed
  - If so, it’s important that their mailing address is updated on prior year applications as well as current year to ensure consumers receive their Form 1095-As
  - The Marketplace uses the last known address on consumers’ Marketplace applications to mail Form 1095-As to tax payors and other responsible adults
Mailing Addresses are Pulled From the Applicable Plan Year’s Application to Mail Form 1095-As IMPORTANT: If consumers update their mailing address on their PY 2018 application, their mailing address will not update on prior year applications.

If consumers do not have the correct mailing address on their PY 2017 application, their Form 1095-A will not be mailed to the right address. This may cause delays in submitting their federal tax return and thus receiving their tax refund when applicable.

To avoid this, assisters should tell consumers to update their mailing addresses on both their PY2018 and PY2017 applications.
Assistors should remind consumers to double check their demographic information on Healthcare.gov to ensure that information on their Form 1095-A is accurate.
Confirm Household Structure

- Consumers may not realize that their household structure for tax filing should be reflected on their Marketplace application
  - For example, if parents share custody of a child, the parent who will claim the child on their taxes should also be the parent who applies for APTC on the child’s behalf

- Assisters should ask consumers if their household structure has changed, to include:
  - Has there been a recent divorce? If so, make sure the couple now has separate Marketplace policies
  - Has there been a change in custody of dependents? If so, make sure the dependents are on the policy of the tax payer who will claim them on their federal taxes
  - Has there been a recent death? If so, make sure the deceased has been removed from the policy

How Consumers Can Access Their Form 1095-A

Tell consumers that, in addition to forms being mailed by January 31, they will also be posted to their ‘MyAccount’ on Healthcare.gov a week before mailing

- This is the best course of action for consumers eager to file taxes
- Consumers should wait for their Form 1095-A to file their taxes

Tell consumers who are seeking Form 1095-A reprints, that they can print the Form from their MyAccount

Assisters will not be able to see Form 1095-As, only consumers have access to this document
